Weather

Fair through Friday in the Valley except patchy low clouds night and morning. Lows in the 50s. Highs both days in the 80s to low 90s. Westerly winds 10 to 20 mph afternoons and evenings.

Their different view

There'a a graceful, mid-flight ballet when skydivers jump from a light plane, caught in the air 7500 feet over Livermore.

It takes an adventurous spirit — and a lot of courage — to jump from an airplane that's a mile and a half high over Livermore.

But there's a group of area folks — business people, women, salesmen who do it regularly. And love it.

They're called skydivers, and they see the world from a different viewpoint, during a trip that's the closest thing human beings will ever get to flying.

The California Parachute Club (there's about 35 local "surviving" members, says one jumper gleefully) allowed the Times to take a first-hand look at their sport. From the first fold of the parachute, to the dive from 7500 feet up, the club members insist that there is just no experience equal to skydiving.

For many, it isn't just a pastime either. It's also a science.

Learning how to handle the equipment, handle a malfunction in mid-air, and land properly are all lessons that could mean life or death. Buying the right kind of parachute, which could cost $1200 and more, is crucial.

And there's the jump, where divers face up to one full minute of "free fall" — an unincumbered race through space at speeds ranging from 110 to 200 mph.

But from the first minute to the last, skydiving holds a combination of natural beauty, adventure — and that touch of danger — which makes it an unusual, fascinating sport.

UC study unit told lab work good, pay poor

LIVERMORE — The majority of Lawrence Livermore Laboratory employes enjoys the Lab's working relationship with the University of California, a consensus of speakers at yesterday's UC study committee public hearing indicated.

While some employes complain about relatively low wages under UC's reins, workers appreciate the prestige and intellectual freedom alloted them.

Lawrence Lab management spent more than four hours explaining Lab operations to the UC team studying the consequences of operating LLL and the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory (LASL) in New Mexico. The committee's report is expected to be forwarded to UC President David Saxon before year's end.

Committee member Edward Hammel, assistant director for energy at LASL, said UC could refuse to institute a program it did not want. The federal Energy Research and Development Administration could terminate its operating agreement with UC on 90 days notice, he said, although it would create public relations problems.

Both laboratories have turned down non-weapons programs, said committee member Herbert York, professor of physics at UC San Diego. But weapons work is different — "The government has no place else to go," York said, referring to the only two facilitie that develop nuclear weapons. s in the U.S.

Physicist Barry Berman said the UC-LLL relationship is geod but should be deeper, including increased exchanges of information and personnel. He felt more energy should be devoted to basic research.

The Lawrence Lab has made some effort in better communication, Berman said, but the university "in some ways has dragged its feet."

The university receives a fee for operating the two laboratories, but Duane C. Sewell, deputy director of LLL, said it is a small amount compared to what private companies get for the same type of service.

Sewell headed the Lab presentation, saying that weapons projects at LLL dropped by one-third since 1970. This was a decision made in Washington, D.C., he said, with no input from either UC or LLL, which opposed the cut.

The university is not able to play a major role in determining the policy direction of the labs, Sewell said in response to a question on switching from weapons work to energy sourcp development. The government has contracted to get the job done and can go elsewhere to do it.

News reports on neutron bomb chided

LIVERMORE — One man helping to develop the neutron bomb feels the current controversy over the enhanced radiation weapon is unfounded.

"Everything you've read recently on that subject is wrong," Harry Reynolds, Lawrence Livermore Laboratory associate director for nuclear explosives, said yesterday.

While testifying before a University of California committee studying the UC-LLL contractual relationship, Reynolds commented on the bomb that kills with radiation but causes relatively little property damage. The Lawrence Lab recently admitted it had been developing the bomb for at least two years.

Radioactive fallout from a neutron bomb is about 10 times less than that of a similar fission bomb, he said. It is less harmful in every other respect than a typical nuclear weapon, Reynolds stated.

He showed a copy of a front page New York Times article dated June 25, 1961 with a story on the neutron bomb, while chiding the press over the weapon's supposed secrecy.

If the U.S. wpre fighting a nuclear war in Germany with its numerous small villages, Reynolds said, the neutron bomb would enable the military to destroy military targets with relatively effect on nearby civilian populations.

The bomb's reduced threat to inanimate structures makes it no easier to use, he said, and would not increase the chance of war.

Valley activities on TV

Cable Connection, the locally originated cable television show, features three segments today at 8 p.m. on cable TV Channel 10 in Pleasanton and Dublin.

Dolores Bengsten and Anne Carroll of Pleasanton's recreation department will discuss the city's adaptive aquatics program which deals with physically and emotionally handicapped children.

Fred Stadle of the Civil Air Patrol based at the Livermore airport will talk about his group and Lilly Ault and Dorothy Davis will narrate a history of Pleasanton in pictures.

The program lasts a half hour and the regularly - scheduled network show may be seen instead on Channel 5 at that time.

Union rights bill nixed

A collective bargaining bill to expand union rights to 100,000 University of California and state college employes, including workers at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, was defeated yesterday by a state Senate committee.

Supporters of AB 1091, sponsored by Assemblyman Howard Berman (D-Beverly Hills), are attempting to work out amendments that would keep the bill alive for this year. Berman said he would try for another vote later.

The action was a major victory for UC and California State University and College officials who had strongly opposed the bill.

Cities join in war on batch plant

PLEASANTON — The city will join Livermore in concerted opposition to an asphalt plant that Lone Star Industries wants to build in the quarry lands between the two towns.

While Livermore fears the Valley's skies will darken as the batching plant kicks up production, Pleasanton officials are adamantly opposed to more truck traffic down First Street.

A fluke in the planning process will give the cities a second crack at the plant.

Alameda County Planning Commissioners approved it last month, but staff inadvertently forgot to post a legal notice of its negative environmental impact report. Now the hearings must be held again.

Livermore officials, chastised once for failing to make a fuss at the first meeting, have vowed to send opposition to the Aug. 22 planning session.

And now Pleasanton will ride with them.

"You're really supporting more trucks on First Street," said Pleasanton Councilman Bill Herlihy, whose motion opposes "another plant anywhere in the Valley that has to use First Street to get to the markets."

Tax rate cut, but it won't spell relief

PLEASANTON — It will cost a record $9.74 million to run the city this coming fiscal year, but it can be done with 6-cents less on the property tax rate.

But the lower rate, down to $1.80 per $100 of assessed value, will not mean lower property tax bills. A whopping 21 per cent hike in home values offsets the cut.

The budget passed on a 4-1 vote with councilman Ken Mercer opposed.

The tax rate reduction slipped through on a close 3-2 call with Mercer and councilman Bill Herlihy voting against it — but for opposite reasons.

The votes came after lengthy debate over expanding city hall, building a new police station and city council chambers, developing a pair of neighborhood parks, and living with any reactionary "property tax reform" from the state legislature.

Motor bike park sites rejected

LIVERMORE — Two possible sites for the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARPD) motorcycle park have been turned down by Livermore's public works department, the district's staff reported last night.

LARPD directors read copies of Livermore Planning Director Dan Lee's report recommending the city deny use of both its west side property near the airport and the old city dump site.

In a memo to the city Lee wrote, the west side property was an unsatisfactory choice because, "dust and noise problems would make the mechanical park incompatible with the golf course."

He added a mechanical park on the city dump site would have, "negative effects on the residential development known as Proud Country and Greenville North."

Both sites he said would be effected by noise and wind blown dust.

The East Bay Regional Park District was also negative toward use of part of its Camp Parks property for this though a vehicle park is part of that district's master plan, according to LARPD staff member Al Adams.

One motorcycle enthusiast, Doug Jorgenson, last night disagreed with Livermore's reasoning and said, "about the noise complaints, you can get silencers and for a couple of years now they have had to meet very rigid standards."

Director Michael MacCracken agreed with him and added, "the argument that motorcycles are going to be more noisy than airplanes is incomprehensible."

McCracken recommended communicating to the Livermore city council that the district disagreed with the staff recommendation.

Pleasanton Playhouse

'Gypsy' here Friday

"I really wrote 'Gypsy' for my son, Erik, so he would stop asking so many questions."

So stated the original, the one and the only "Gypsy," Gypsy Rose Lee, in the program notes of the musical that took Broadway by storm almost two decades ago.

Now "Gypsy" is coming to the Valley!

In the form of the Pleasanton Playhouse production, that is.

That original production starred Ethel Merman as Mama Rose, Sandra Church as Louise, and Jack (The Odd Couple, Quincy) Klugman as Herbie.

The Pleasanton Playhouse production, being presented in cooperation with Chabot College, premieres at the Amador Valley High School auditorium Friday night. Curtain time is 8:30.

"Gypsy" will also be presented at Amador on Saturday and Aug. 17, 18, 19 and 20. It will then move to Chabot College auditorium for play dates Aug. 26 and 27 and Sept. 2 and 3. Curtain for the Chabot performances will be 8 p.m.

Glenn DuBose is directing the Pleasanton-Chabot show which stars Sue Arnold as Mama Rose, Sam Hamilton as Gypsy, and Don Juhlin as Herbie.

Don Wilson is director of choreography, Wayne Smith vocal coach and music coordinator, Merrill Curtis costume designer, Tom Langmuth set designer, Jim McKie technical director, and Mark Lepiane musical director.

A look through a program from the original Broadway production shows it was presented by David Merrick and Leland Hayward, with music and lyrics by Jule Styne and Stephen Sondheim, respectively. The entire production was directed and choreographed by Jerome Robbins.

Based on the memoirs of the noted ecdysiast, television personality, actress and writer Gypsy Rose Lee, the book was subsequently converted to the musical of the same name.

The production opening at Amador Friday night will be followed by a champagne reception at the Veterans Hall on Main Street in Pleasanton.

Nuclear expert knocks secrecy

LIVERMORE — Dr. Edward Teller told the UC Study Committee yesterday that continued secrecy in technology after World War II was a "tragic mistake."

Teller, the father of the hydrogen bomb, termed technological secrets including those hidden at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory as "an elapse into medieval mentality."

He stressed that LLL's operation by the university fosters openness in scientific research which in turn speeds up technological progress.

"Research should be done by lab employes," Teller said, "but what we do with research should be left to the people to decide."

Teller does feel, however, that LLL and labs in Los Alamos, N.M. could function without university supervision but such a relationship would deter free and unlimited pursuit of knowledge.

"I would be very sad if LLL and the university split," he said.

Teller said that the Russians are now ahead in practically all military respects. "There is one 1 area where we are superior," he said, "and that is electronics where we are 10 years ahead of everybody."

Teller, who left LLL 6 two years ago, wrote a letter to President Carter suggesting that the PLOWSHARE program (peaceful nuclear explosives) be a joint program with the Russians. "Prohibition breeds suspicion," he said. According to Teller, Carter's answer left the door open for further pursuit of the proposal but was not at all complete in negotiations.

Although the free exchange of information regarding laser fusion research is limited he feels that the battle for complete openess on the topic can be won in "the next year or two."

Tax rate cut 6 cents

Owners of a "typical" $60,000 Pleasanton home, one valued by the county at $50,000 last year, can expect to pay the city about $38 more this year. Of the roughly $1,725 in property taxes paid on the home, the city will get about $238.

Mercer pushed for a 9-cent rate reduction, and bitterly opposed money for the council chambers and city hall expansion.

Council members Bill Herlihy and Joyce LeClaire at first voted to retain the $1.86 tax rate, but swung to Mayor Bob Philcox' motion to cut it.

The budget slipped up a net $240,000 over city staff's recommendation after council clipped off $52,000, but added monies for the city hall work and preliminary engineering plans for the police station and council chambers.

The city currently leases the old Pleasanton Justice Courthouse on West Angela Street for some $15,000 a year. Council and its commissions meet there, while city attorneys hold down part of the building. The budget earmarks $240,000 for the city hall addition and council chambers, and $40,000 to establish a "capital project" for a new police station.

Mercer said last year's 5-cent hike in the tax rate to the record $1.86 per $100 left the city with a fat cash balance that should be refunded to citizens. The Mayor's 6-cent cut was not enough.

But Herlihy and LeClaire supported each other's moves to keep the rate at $1.86.

Veteran councilman Herlihy said the six additional cents would mean about 60-cents per month per house. The money, he argued, should be used to build the long awaited Mission Park and Vintage Hills parks.

LeClaire, who works for State Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-Santa Clara, warned fellow council members that pending property tax reform in the state legislature could cripple small cities.

She said three measures currently under consideration probably would be amended into a compromise that will bend to the "big cities'" clout.

Cities ally to war on asphalt plant

Lone Star officials have said the batch plant will let them compete directly with similar operations on Kaiser Industries and Rhodes and Jamieson property.

The new plant will not mean additional traffic, city staff tried to tell council, but a shift within the industry.

But Kaiser and R&J use their private roads to I-580, Herlihy snapped. If Lone Star takes any of the others' business, it will mean less trucks on the private roads, and more on city streets.

Herlihy has vehemently led opposition to truck traffic down First Street as the Valley's big four quarry miners have hauled their loads to market.

Cal Rock and Lone Star do not have access to the others' private roads.

"That's too big an investment just for the Valley," Herlihy said of company claims the asphalt would be destined for local use.

Pleasanton Councilwoman Joyce LeClaire said she checked into a similar plant in Fremont, one built to the state of the art and reportedly clean.

The company mixes a small percentage of sulphur oil into the process to help cut down pollutants, she said.

Even if approved by county planners, Lone Star still must get a permit from the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District.

Closer UC-LLL ties seen

defense expenditures and military manpower were both bigger than in the U.S. The potential yield of the U.S. nuclear stockpile had decreased simultaneously, he said.

Reynolds said more than half of nuclear weapons work in the U.S. is unclassified. He hoped UC could establish a closer relationship with LLL.

Carl Haussmann, associate director at large, said LLL manpower devoted to weapons work had declined from 78.4 per cent in 1969 to an estimated 48.3 per cent in 1978.

Other types of research are undertaken on the basis of national need, long-term goals, potential output and special expertise the Lab can offer. Workers in unclassified fields attempt to get their ideas and developments made public, he said, so industry can adopt them for the general good.

Bill Lokke, weapons division leader, said the design labs don't try to force their ideas on the military. "We use the Pentagon as a resource to guide the choice of effort," he told the committee.

A joint analysis by the Department of Defense and LLL determines the value of a new idea, he said.

Lokke said he spends two to three days a month in Washington, D.C. for talks. He spends less time there than any of the other four division leaders, he said.

Bill Nelson, division leader of weapons engineering at LLL, said the depth of technical knowledge and freedom of expression extended under UC operation made the working relationship important.

The lack of profit motive on the part of UC, universally recognized technical objectivity and freedom from bureaucratic manipulation were major factors why the relationship has proven so rewarding, Nelson said.

The UC committee will meet next in Los Angeles Sept 8. Another public meeting will be held in the Bay Area Oct. 5 at the UC San Francisco Extension Center beginning at 10 a.m.

Coors worker tells reasons for national boycott of suds

OAKLAND — Alleged unfair labor practices and discrimination in hiring are at the heart of the Coors beer boycott which the Alameda County Board of Supervisors joined this week.

The supervisors voted 3-0 to ask the Alameda County Coliseum Complex to quit selling Coors at the stadium. Supervisor Charles Santana of Hayward, a Mexican - American, brought up the issue. He noted that Mexican - American groups for years have been boycotting the Denver area brewery because they don't hire Spanish surnamed persons in the percentages in which they are found in the Denver area population.

A check with Albert Gauna, a Coors worker who is visiting the Bay Area to help with the boycott here, revealed some figures about alleged hiring discrimination.

Gauna said that in his AFL-CIO local, which went on strike April 5, there are 92 Spanish surnamed, 59 blacks, two Orientals, one American Indian and 28 women out of 1,472 members. That means there are 7 or 8 per cent Mexican Americans in the union membership, which includes the brewery, but not any of the peripheral occupations like bottle production, transporation and so on.

Mexican - Americans comprise approximately 20 per cent of the Denver area population, said Gauna.

Labor doesn't like Joseph Coors, conservative president of the brewery, for many reasons.

The current AFL-CIO strike is a good example, said Gauna. The money issue has been settled, but there are basic human rights which Coors doesn't want workers to have, he said.

One is the right to free speech. A worker can be fired for saying anything derogatory about Coors or the firm's products, even off the premises.

Another is the alleged violation of privacy. It's in the contract that the Coors firm can search its employees anytime, anywhere on the premises. All employees must agree to a lie detector test, too.

Issues like that have caused national AFL-CIO President George Meany to call the latest in a long line of boycotts against, Coors, said Gauna.

The unions also dislike Coors strong political insistence that Colorado get a tougher "right to work" law. The Colorado Legislature already enacted a bill which said that 75 per cent of eligible workers must vote for a union before it can represent them. In California, it's a simple majority vote.

Now Coors and others on the Right To Work Committee want to get rid of compulsory union membership for people who voted against a union, but got one anyway.

Coors claims that's in line with individual freedoms; the unions say it weakens them so they have no bargaining leverage at contract time.

The unions also feel that Coors doesn't respect their authorized strikes. When the AFL-CIO went on strike April 5, Coors began hiring non - union workers the next day. Fifteen unions have been aced out of Coors by that tactic since 1965, said Gauna.

'Stop Coors sales at Coliseum' — supes

OAKLAND — The Alameda County Board of Supervisors will ask the Oakland - Alameda County Coliseum Complex board of directors to quit selling Coors beer.

Supervisors voted 3-0 Tuesday to instruct Supervisor Charles Santana of Hayward to ask the Coliseum board to remove the Coors beer. Supervisors Fred Cooper of Alameda and Joseph Bort of Oakland abstained on the vote.

Santana brought up the boycott idea. He noted that organized labor has been boycotting Coors for some time because the brewery's owner is a conservative who supposedly is a militant anti - unionist.

Mexican - American leaders in Colorado where the beer is produced claim that Coors does not hire Mexican - Americans in anywhere near the numbers which would reflect their makeup in the Colorado population. Colorado has one of the largest concentrations of Mexican - Americans outside California and Texas.

Santana is scheduled to meet soon with the Coliseum board; the county is part - owner of the stadium. He wanted to know the board's sentiments because organized labor will be "deluging the Coliseum soon with letters."

Cooper didn't give any reason for his abstention. Bort, the board's lone Republican, didn't articulate a reason for his abstention, either, but said a few weeks ago he didn't like the boycott tactic in dealing with South Africa.

"I've never drunk Coors in my life," said Bort. He excused himself then to "go buy a bottle of milk before my 12:30 appointment."

Cooper's abstention on the roll call meant that Valerie Raymond was sitting on the needed third vote.

"Ah, all right, yes," she said, putting Santana's motion over the top.

Russians visit LLL

Filing opens today in San Ramon election

DANVILLE -- Filing for the special election to fill the position vacated last month by San Ramon schools trustee Ronald Harris commences today and continues through September 1.

Harris was elected last March, along with Donald Sledge and Gregory McCoy, but resigned when he accepted a new executive position with a Dallas, Texas, firm.

The first runnerup in that March election, Claudia Edwards of Danville, asked the board to consider appointing her prior to their decision to call a special election.

Mrs. Edwards was not available yesterday to determine if she will take out a declaration of candidacy form from the Contra Costa County elections office in Martinez.

Harline Kruger, the second runnerup in March, told The Times she would not file.

None of the other 11 candidates, with the possible exception of Robert Schepman of Danville, has indicated any intention to run in November.

Prospective candidates may also file a statement of qualifications to be included in voter information pamphlets sent out to all district voters. The cost for candidates submitting the statements will be approximately $28 per 1,000 voters. However, this price would be significantly reduced with more candidates submitting statements. Statements are limited to 200 words.

There is no filing fee.

Declaration of candidacy forms can only be obtained at the elections office in Martinez.

The San Ramon Valley Unified School District had 27,884 eligible voters as of last December.

The successful candidate in November would serve until March of 1979. They would then have to run again, if they chose to continue on the board. Harris' term runs through March, 1981.

Harris was vice-president of the board. Jane Upp, present clerk, is assisting with that duty during the interim period. Other members of the board include Ed Best, president, McCoy and Sledge. The terms of Best and Upp expire in March of 1979.

Political steam builds on Broadmoor traffic problem

SAN RAMON — A movement to squelch child-threatening traffic conditions along Broadmoor Drive in San Ramon is gaining momentum, according to one of the protest organizers.

Following advice from the San Ramon Homeowners Association (SRHA), people living along Broadmoor Drive are starting to sign petitions and organize meetings in an effort to put some clout in their protest. Their end goal is to get law enforcement backing through regulatory signs and traffic citations.

Broadmoor Drive runs between Montevideo Drive and Alcosta Boulevard. There are three stop signs along the 2 mile stretch. They are located at Montevideo Drive, Pine Valley Road and Alcosta Boulevard.

There are two 25-mile-an-hour speed limit signs. One faces south at the Alcosta Boulevard approach to Broadmoor Drive. It is partially hidden by tree branches. The other one faces north just beyond Montevideo Drive.

For years, complaints have trickled in from small groups and individuals about teenagers and adults speeding on Broadmoor Drive. Some reports mentioned cars being driven over sidewalks and through yards.

This evening, a group of residents living along Broadmoor Drive will meet to discuss protest strategy.

Their main concern is for children's safety. Children living along Broadmoor Drive have to walk to schools and are in danger from reckless drivers, a spokesperson reported.

After petitions are signed, protest group representatives will approach the SRHA again and seek their support. After that they plan to tackle law enforcement agencies and county authorities to seek their help and advice.

Alameda fair, unlike others, doesn't pad attendance stats

A report being compiled by Secretary-Manager Lee Hall of the Alameda County Fair Association, comparing attendance, revenues and expenses of 11 California fairs with the Pleasanton operation, will show the local fair to be an exemplary leader in all three categories.

Hall referred to the pending report Tuesday night during a directors meeting. His preliminary figures, such as those cited for the Sonoma County Fair in Santa Rosa, indicate some fairs are packing their admission counts by adding both main gate and race attendance. This would tend to indicate that thousands of persons are being counted twice.

Hall said that local Fair directors will sometimes wonder why other smaller fairs are outdrawing the Alameda County Fair, though showing considerably less in the revenues column.

Preliminary figures presented to board members Tuesday indicate some fairs are admitting as many as 50 per cent of all counted through the main gates on passes and/or special credentials. One fair showed just 48 per cent of all admissions were paid. The latest figure for the Alameda County Fair shows that 73 per cent of all admissions were paid.

Hall has obtained data on six of the racing fairs — Vallejo (Solano), Santa Rosa (Sonoma), San Mateo, Stockton (San Joaquin), Fresno and Ferndale (Humboldt) — as well as Del Mar, Costa Mesa, Bakersfield, Ventura, Imperial, and Santa Clara.

"Fairs have got to be concerned with what their bottom line dollar figures are," claimed Hall. "They show big attendance figures for the prestige, but they don't show the revenues accrued."

At Tuesday's directors meeting, he claimed that four of the fairs compared were operating in the red.

Hall reiterated his contention that county and district fairs are in some danger, not only from a swath of potentially-restrictive bills currently in the state legislature, but from major track racing interests.

The report comparing budgets of the 12 fairs will be presented to a meeting of the board's finance and budget committee Saturday, Aug. 27 at 9:30 a.m.

In other business Tuesday, Hall reported on the legislation currently in committee in Sacramento and called for directors to contact Sen. Nicholas Petris regarding one, AB 1370 by Assemblyman Willie Brown, D-San Francisco.

The counter-proposal of Foley and Burk's Lloyd Hilligoss, for carnival operations next summer, was referred to the concessions committee. Hilligoss proposed a contract calling for 55 cents per capita for each admission to the fairgrounds the first two of a five-year contract. The amount over the five-year contract period would add up to $84,000.

Hilligoss' request for additional rest room facilities was referred to the buildings and grounds committee.

Directors said an additional request for increased sheriffs protection would, if granted, have to be paid by the Redwood City-based carnival.

Directors approved a $5,000 deductible policy for their Errors and Omissions Policy. The premium amounts to $1 million.

The board also learned that Nathaniel Colley has been elected to succeed Chet Soda as chairman of the California Horse Race Board.

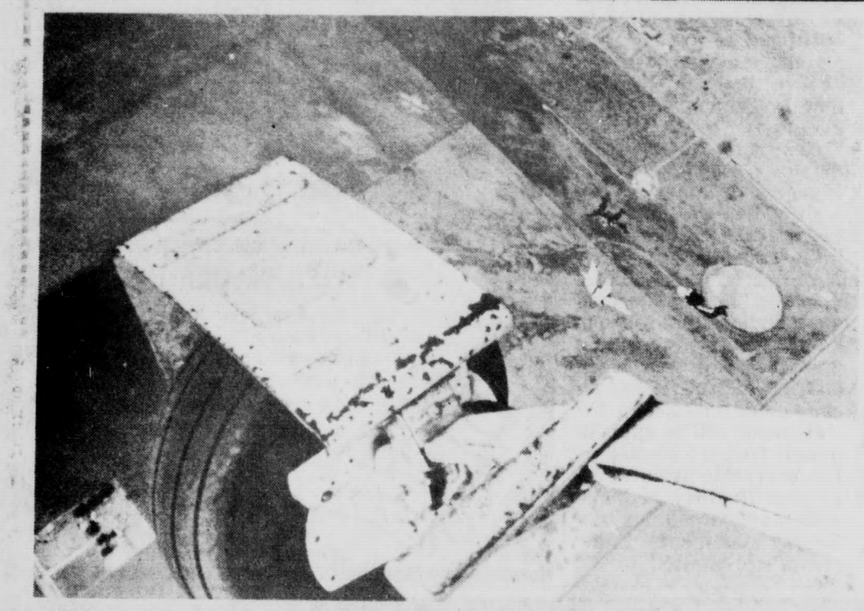
Sky divers: taking a risky walk in heaven



While leaning from the open door of a light plane, Times' photographer Mike Macor captured the divers in a mid-flight ballet. Above, jumpers are suspended below the plane's wheel after the fall. A fraction of a second later, below, they are merely three small dots on the way to a target.

Divers Bill Stanley, James Kirk and Lee Wilcox (left to right) cram into the back of a light plane with equipment checked, ready for the jump. The three are discussing plans to make formations together while still in the air.

The parachute, when ready to go, looks much like a backpack. But it can cost a diver $1200 and more — and carries the equipment which safeguards his life. At right, the parachute looks like a billowy mass after the jump, when the grounded diver must contend with yards of material, all of it aiming to get away in the wind.

There are some folks in the area who just can't seem to keep their feet on the ground.

They prefer the view from a mile or more high — where the Valley looks like an infinite canvas fashioned by some master abstract expressionist painter.

Up there, in the skies over Livermore, a group of them sail between land and sky, suspended for a few seconds in a special world that is, for most of us, unreachable — the closest thing human beings know to flying. The sport is called skydiving.

The group, called the California Parachute Club, allowed Times photographer Mike Macor and myself to accompany them on a fligt — known as a "jump run" in their crowd — to witness firsthand the thrills, joys and very deadly risks of the sport.

"Skydiving is not a low-risk sport," contends member Jim Penticoff, "but the risks that do exist are worth taking."

"It's a mental challenge," says Jaime Wilson, a relative newcomer to the group, "but it is also a thrill, a unique experience."

"I'm allergic to a boring life," smiles veteran Peter Kalthoff, who has completed more than 2000 jumps in his career, "that's why I do it." The group, which includes women, business people, old hands and knockkneed beginners, meets on weekends and holidays for regular drops. They also provide instruction for students, who can learn the sport and safety procedures on a Saturday, and go for their first jump by Sunday, all for $80 or so.

Whether it is for sport or thrill, it was obvious that lots of care is taken before any jumper heads for the heights.

Before we were allowed to go up in the light plane for two separate flights with the jumpers, Jim Penticoff briefed us on safety procedures. First, we were required to don a parachute *nd a heavy piece of gear it was — for "just in case" purposes.

Three jumpers carefully prepared their chutes — some of which cost up to $1200 — while discussing the all-important folding techniques. We were cautioned to protect our ripcords from accidental openings while in the plane. "If the pilot tells you to get out, then jump. Wait two seconds," said Penticoff, "but don't count to ten — that's only on TV — and pull the cord. Land with your feet together, knees bent." Right.

I headed into the small aircraft with Bill Stanley, Lee Wilcox and Peter Kalthoff, who were dressed in colorful, heavy jumpsuits to provide drag.

The pilot, Bob Norman, strapped himself in while I sat next to the plane's door, on the floor, and fashioned a rather loose seat belt, while my parachute provided a bit of cushioning in back. The jumpers crammed onto the floor, talking animatedly about formations they would do while in the air.

"We're usually slightly nervous around this time," said Bill Stanley, "and we talk a lot right before a jump." He fixed a movie camera onto a special helmet he would be wearing during the free fall. Many of the members, he said, take spectacular photos and films of their free fall experiences.

The pilot was heading up to 7500 feet, or about a mile and a half. At that altitude, jumpers would have 30 seconds of free fall to make formations, join hands, look at the area before they opened up their parachutes.

The view became more wide and colorful, as that Flat perfect surface, the farmlands, stretched below us in varied shades of gold, browns and greens.

"That's the rad lab," said Bill, pointing to a tiny group of buildings that looked no more significant than pieces on a Monopoly set. "We're at about 5000 feet." He seemed to be able to sense the height without using any instruments.

We were over Altamont Raceway, still ascending, able to see the Bay, some last whiffs of smoke over Mt. Diablo, the soft rolls of hills that looked like so many bodies tucked under velvety blankets.

"Jump run," said Peter. They were getting ready to go.

"I don't know what's wrong with my flying," joked pilot Norman with a grin, "but every time we hit 8000 feet, these guys get out." He opened the plane's door. The sound of 60 mph winds rushing by absolutely startled me for a minute — to say nothing of the stupendous drop to the ground, which was all too clear at my place right next to the open door.

The three jumpers crouched, secured their helmets one last time, and headed outside. "Get ready to watch," Lee said.

For one swift second, as in a stilled movie frame, I saw them poised on the wing, facing the wind with a look of complete concentration on each face.

Then, the jump. I leaned over, out the open door as much as I dared, to see the fall to the ground. In a fraction of a second, the three had become small black dots racing, swimming on the air to earth. It was as if some supernatural force had simply sucked them to the ground, so fast did they disappear from view.

From below, spectators could see them link hands, form a line, then link hands again. Then, Bob, Lee and Peter moved horizontally across the air, away from each other, and pulled the ripcords. All in the space of 30 seconds, all in the space between a small, light airplane and the land.

From up above, I could see three colored dots — the parachutes — floating softly toward the minute gravel circle which was their target. They came slowly, slowly into the brown fields. The divers were home.

Muscular dystrophy / The local fight is under way to wipe out a crippling disease

She'll have to take more strides to keep up with the bigger kids, but you can bet she'll try her hardest to do her part at the 24 hour Skate-a-thon. The event is expected to attract over 250 area skaters. Local merchants will be providing prizes each hour of the day-long marathon.

. . .24 hours of bowling to net $5000

The Pleasanton Jaycees are planning to "strike" muscular dystrophy from the books when they'll try to raise $5000 next week at the second annual Muscular Dystrophy Bowl-a-Thon, to be held at Granada Bowl in Livermore.

The fund-raising venture, which is a joint effort of the Jaycees and the management of Granada Bowl, begins Saturday, Aug. 20 with a 2 p.m. "grudge" match between the Pleasanton and Livermore city councils.

"This is Pleasanton's way of participating in the nation-wide Jaycee goal — to raise $100,000 for muscular dystrophy," according to club president Wes Ensign. "Nobody's tackled an event like this in the Valley, and we really want to contribute a lot to the cause." Dennis Fanucchi of Granada Bowl and a coordinator of the project, says that some big events are planned to hit the $5000 goal.

First, he's planning to have two bowling pros out on the lanes, to challenge any local players for $2 a game. The players will "win" in every case, says Dennis. There will be raffles, with prizes like water beds and green stamps. Bowlers who don't beat the pros can spin the wheel for a prize. Sponsors can donate money for the games, especially for the pros' playing — which will continue for 24 hours.

Drawings will be held hourly, and there will be free coffee all day. Local merchants, Dennis says, are invited to contribute prizes to the Bowl-a-Thon cause, which is "an entire community venture."

So far, Dennis adds, 90 people have been involved in the Bowl-a-Thon work. "We'd really like to give everyone something to remember," he says, "as well as raise money for the research."

Also planned are visits by pro-football star Ben Davidson from Pleasanton, and Joe Higgins the "Dodge sheriff," who will make the rounds of area lounges and bars in an effort to raise more money. Dennis adds that football pools will be another fund-raising gesture for the muscular dystrophy cause.

All money raised will be presented in a check on the local telethon, Wes added.

For more information about the Bowl-a-thon, or to sponsor a bowler in the event, or to donate a prize, call Dennis Fanucchi at Granada Bowl, 447-5600.

Marshall Kamena, left, vice-mayor of Livermore, and Pleasanton mayor Bob Philcox take special measures to sign the proclamation naming the week of Aug. 15 to 21 as Muscular Dystrophy Bowl-a-Thon Week in both Livermore and Pleasanton. The Bowl-a-Thon, to start Aug. 20 at 2 p.m. in Granada Bowl, Livermore, will be kicked off by a "grudge" bowling match between the Livermore and Pleasanton city councils.

She skates for kids who can't

Judy Stevens started her skating career the same way many folks did — on the sidewalk.

But this weekend, she'll be attempting something that very few could even try. Judy will be skating for 24 hours straight, to raise money for muscular dystrophy during the Skate-a-Thon, to be held Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 15 and 16 at Livermore's Roller King.

"We're going to get out there and skate," she says, "so we can help the little children who can't."

Judy, a skating instructor at Roller King, says there was once a time when her own athletic future was in doubt. After taking up skating, and entering a variety of competitions, tragedy struck when she was 23.

"I was skating dance and figures with my partner," she recalls, "when my partner tripped me by accident." Her head hit the wall, and days later she began fainting and blacking out, she says. "I got a huge bump on my head, and was in the hospital for 22 days," Judy says. Doctors told her, at first, that she "had a brain tumor."

They told me I would never skate again," she adds. As it turned out, the "tumor" was an abscess, which was dissolved. It took her three years to get back on her feet — and into the rink again. "I showed them I could do it," she says, adding that, on her first venture back on skates "my legs didn't feel I could make it again. I was shaking, afraid."

Judy overcame her fear, and with courage — and lots of persistance — went back into the sport.

Now, she's taking little ones and turning them into fearless skaters. "My greatest thrill is seeing a little child who's making it on his own out there," she smiles. "Some kids will never make skaters but they don't have fear, like adults do."

Judy has also taught a special skating class for mentally retarded kids, and assists in instruction at some of the other Roller King classes.

She's helped raise money for muscular dystrophy before, when she skated 120 hours and — between three skaters — raised some $5000 for the cause.

The secret, she says, in skating the grueling long hours of the Skate-a-Thon is "to pace yourself, not to wear yourself out."

She'd like to raise a lot of money for the MD cause, she says, by gathering up at least 100 sponsors who will donate at least 20 cents for every hour she skates. Judy says that people who'd like to sponsor her 24-hour skating run can contact her at 443-0952 before 1 p.m. or after 5 p.m. "I'm just trying to do what I can," she says, "to raise money for the little kids. I'm going to skate the whole day. I just know I can."

. . .Skaters roll on and on — hoping for $20,000

Valley roller skaters are getting ready to roll — and some of them will be going for 24 hours — during the Skate-a-Thon for the Muscular Dystrophy Assoc., to be held at Roller King in Livermore.

The 24-hour event, sponsored by Roller King, will begin Monday, August 15 at 8 p.m., and continue through Tuesday. Paticipants in the Skate-a-Thon expect to raise some $20,000 for muscular dystrophy research in the event, which is expected to attract 250 area skaters, according to volunteer Maggie Johansen.

Prizes from local merchants, including a ten-speed bike from Livermore Cyclery, savings bonds from Security Pacific Bank and Bank of America, CB radios, sleeping bags and portraits will be given away during each hour of the event. In addition, radio station KKIQ plans a day-long broadcast of the event. Skaters will come from all over the valley, and even from Southern California — such as the one skater who plans to run the whole day going backwards.

Every participant who skates the entire 24 hours will be eligible for special prizes.

A $3 registration fee is required of all skaters who plan to participate in the fund-raiser ... The fee covers the Skate-a-Thon, and an awards party to be held later in the month.

For more information on how to take part in the event — as a skater, or as a sponsor — call Roller King, 3981 First St., Livermore, at 455-8385.

Telethon

The annual muscular dystrophy telethon, featuring Jerry Lewis, Frank Sinatra, Tony Bennett, Barry Manilow and other stars in the entertainment industry, is scheduled this year for the Labor Day weekend on Channel 2. Local groups who have raised money will see their checks presented on local versions of the telethon broadcast.

. . .they will walk 10 miles for MD

If bowling doesn't knock you over and skating doesn't give you much of a whirl, the Muscular Dystrophy Walk-a-thon sponsored by local 7-Eleven stores might just be for you.

East Bay 7-Eleven stores have set a goal of walking 100 miles on Saturday, Aug. 20.

Each walker is to get sponsors to contribute 10 cents per mile, or whatever they can afford, to be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Locally, the walk will be a ten - mile route starting at 1497 Danville Blvd. near Stone Valley Road following along Hartz Avenue and San Ramon Valley Boulevard ending at Crow Canyon Road.

Walkers are responsible for arranging their own transportation from the finish to home. But, if you cannot walk the entire route, 7-Eleven will transport you to the finish.

Adults will supervise walking groups to insure safety, indicates 7-Eleven.

Sign - up sheets with instructions and maps are available from area 7-Eleven stores.

For kids who are more inclined toward business ventures, a "Carnival Against Dystrophy" might be a way to help the cause.

Last year, nearly $1.5 million was raised by children at over 43,000 carnivals.

The youngsters plan, organize and host the backyard carnivals themselves with the aid of suggestions from the carnival kit.

The kit can be obtained by writing: Carnivals Against Dystrophy P.O. Box 4455, San Francisco, Ca. 94101.

The MDA supports a nationwide network of 178 clinics which provide diagnosis, treatment, orthopedic aids and physical therapy. All services are provided free.

Patients in the Bay Area are served by the MDA clinics at Children's Hospital of San Francisco, Herrick Memorial Hospital, Berkeley, Stanford University Medical Center and Santa Clara Valley Medical Center.

Reading Matter

Originally a magazine was a storehouse, not a periodical. "The Gentleman's Magazine", introduced to the public in 1731, was the first publication to use the word in its new meaning, stating in its introduction that the publication was intended to "store up" a collection of various subjects, "as in a magazine."

Tips on wines for dinner

SAN FRANCISCO — Recent research by the Wine Institute of San Francisco claims that in the last year wine lists in restaurants around the country gained in breadth as well as depth. Also, in some cases, prices were lowered.

The increase in knowledgeable wine consumers is a factor in the trend, the Institute claimed. Of equal importance, it says, however, is that many restaurants are reporting big sales increases, and more profits from wine.

The institute has forwarded what it sets down as a minimum set of wine standards.

1 — A wine list should include at least two wines which complement each entree on the menu. If the wines are vintaged, the years should be provided. (If a restaurant uses a 'V' next to the wine, the waiters and waitresses should be award of which vintages are in stock.

2 — In a restaurant with a dozen wines and a suitable menu, there should also be a decent selection (at least three each) of appetizer and dessert wines, and at least two champagnes.

3 — Wines should be offered in carafes and by the glass at a fair price, and the size of the carafe should be indicated on the list.

4 — Pricing in general should be fair. This is tricky, since fair is relative, but retail plus a dollor or even double the wholesale price still leaves a good profit. Anything over twice retail may be considered gouging.

5 — The wine list should be offered with the menu, and the wine should arrive long before the food.

6 — The label should be presented, and the bottle opened at the table promptly.

7 — Glasses should be at least eight ounces in size.

8 — White wines and roses should be chilled, reds at room temperature.

Alameda County Supervisor Valerie Raymond cuts the ribbon marking Arby's grand opening on Monday. Also shown with the supervisor is — Dublin Chamber of Commrce director Mary Stewart (left), Bcky Eveleth the Maid of Dublin, and Arby's General Manager Richard Alldred.

Arby's grand opening piled on the roast beef

DUBLIN — The doors of Arby's are finally open.

And for all those curious onlookers driving down Village Parkway around noon Monday the answer is "no."

Reggie Jackson did not show up to cut the tape christening the new building.

Instead, Alameda County Supervisor Valerie Raymond, representatives of Dublin's Chamber of Commerce, and Dublin's Maid Becky Eveleth caused all the commotion at the gala affair.

For years Arby's developed its roast beef reputation in leaps and bounds matching the taste buds of hearty eaters on the East coast.

Now, under new ownership, Arby's is back and determined to capture the coveted roast beef title, "best in the west."

Arby's specializes in choice roast beef piled high on a sesame seed bun with lettuce and tomatoe, and assorted special sauces.

They also have a number of mouth-watering delights including Turkey Deluxe, Ham 'N Cheese, Beef 'N Cheese club sandwiches and platters. The platters come with cole slaw and a choice between french fries and potatoe cakes.

Arby's new, clean building takes on the appearance of a high class airport complete with mod chairs, smoke glass windows, and sturdy wooden picnic tables on the observation deck for viewing the traffic situation on Village Parkway.

You can eat outside, inside, or on the road if you wish.

They are open Sunday through Thursday from 11 a.m. until 11 p.m. and the doors are open from noon until midnight on Friday and Saturday.

A special feature of the Arby's grand opening was the presentation of four perpetual trophies to the annual Christmas basketball tournament.

The tournament is composed of 7th and 8th grade, boys and girls basketball teams from all over the Tri-Valley area.

The recreation department of the Valley Community Services District organizes the holiday tournament.

Present at the opening of the new restaurant, to receive the trophy donations from Arby's General Manager Richard Alldred, were Brian May, the district's senior recreation supervisor and Lila Euler, one of the district's Board of Directors.

Free movies at Shannon

DUBLIN — A John Denver film and two baseball films will be shown free of charge this evening at 7 in Shannon Park Community Center in Dublin.

The Valley Community Services District (VCSD) Recreation Department is sponsoring the shows. Co-sponsors are the Alameda County Library and Dublin Public Library.

"Bighorn with John Denver" and "Sport of the Century" are the movie titles. The first is about the great outdoors; the latter shows highlights of the 1976 World Series.

Ex-chief to aid TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe Wambaugh, the ex-police sergeant who created NBC's "Police Story," has quit as its consultant. His successor this season: Tom Reddin, ex-chief of Los Angeles' finest.

But it's not a new TV experience for Reddin, 65, who began as a cop pounding a skid row beat here in 1941, rose through the ranks and headed the LAPD for two years before retiring in 1969.

He says he worked as an adviser on Jack Webb's old "Dragnet" series while still serving in the stern, old-school administration of the police department's late Chief William Parker.

Reddin praises Webb's painstaking efforts back then to accurately depict police work. But of the two shoes, he says he likes "Police Story" best.

This, he said, is "because 'Dragnet' would never put on anything that indicated a policeman had any kind of weakness or was truly human."

In contrast, he added, the newer series, which starts its fifth season on Sept. 27, is both "an accurate depiction of the job and shows that the people on the job have the same frailties as the rest of the population, that the policeman isn't any 'miracle person ... "

What doesn't he like about the show?

"I really find it hard to be critical because it's the only one I regularly watch," he said. "I'm not offended that it shows policemen drink, have girl friends, that they sometimes get out of line on minor things ... I know it happens.

"Having reviewed disciplinary reports for about 40 per cent of my total time as chief, I determined a long time ago there's nothing any policeman would do that would surprise me."

Reddin, after retiring, worked three years as a news anchor and commentator at KTLA-TV here, then ran for mayor, lost, and went into the private security business. He now owns his own security firm.

He was asked if "Police Story," which gets police cooperation when it seeks it, would have gotten such help in Chief Parker's time.

"Oh, no, I don't think so," said the ex-cop, born in New York City and raised in Colorado.

"Because in those days, I think some of the things the show does would have been viewed with a great deal of concern for showing that police are human, for not depicting them the goodie two-shoes way."

Sharkey's tall buddy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Peter Isacksen says his family moved to California from Dover, N.H., "when I was 2. Or when I was 5 foot 7. I break it down like that."

Now a foot taller and 22 years older, he's familiar to viewers as Don Rickles' towering enlisted aide in NBC's Navy boot camp comedy, "CPO Sharkey," which got fair ratings after its premiere last spring.

It's his first TV series, and, he says, the first television show for which he ever auditioned: "I'd never been to NBC before except on a tour."

Which is tolerable luck, considering Isacksen, a friendly, happy-go-lucky gent, only has been a professional actor for about 18 months.

He says he got the itch to emote while in high school in suburban La Mirada. There, he says, basketball coaches, forever dreaming of tall talent, tended to think he had a cog loose.

"They kept looking at me, saying, 'He's studying acting? Why? Get out here and run sprints,'" said Isacksen, who abandoned hoop stuff entirely for acting while in Fullerton Junior College.

Then, as now, people tended to think him too tall for acting.

"Constantly," he laughed."All through college I was working with midgets — everyone's 5-1, 5-2. My professors kept wondering, 'Good, but how'll we use him?'

"So finally I worked on my own in community theaters, where people would take a chance on me. When I set my mind to do something, I'm going to do it. And — knock on wood — it's working out so far."

In addition to his NBC show, so far this includes three movies, two with Ronnie "Happy Days" Howard — "Grand Theft Auto" and "Eat My Dust." The latter movie was his first.

"It won the Purple Onion award in 'National Lampoon,'" he noted. "For worst film of 1976. So I was in an award-winning film."

In addition to acting, he recently teamed up with "CPO" colleague David Landsburg in a comedy-singing act they premiered a few weeks ago at a local new-talent boite called The Improvisation.

Isacksen, who plays guitar, says he's amazed that "people clapped for my singing. I used to sing in the key of M."

Fireman chef TV debut

Jim Neil, co - owner of the Village Cookery in Orinda, literally wore his other hat recently — his fireman's hat — as shooting began on segments of the Channel 5 television feature that will star Neil as "the Fireman Chef from Engine 41."

Filming of the first four segments of the television series took place on location at the Village Cookery, scheduled for TV every Friday evening at 7:30 p.m., starting Aug. 12, on the CBS "Evening" show originating in San Francisco.

Neil, who grew up in North Beach in San Francisco, has a flair for all international cooking, but his specialty is Italian. So it's fitting that the first three segments of the television show have an Italian twist: the first, set for Aug. 12, will show Neil demonstrating the use of a pasta machine; the second, a week later, will focus on al dente cooking of pasta; and the third will tempt viewers with a demonstration of preparing sour cream fettucine.

The fourth segment, a departure from the Italian, but appropriate to Neil's Irish ancestry, will show the fireman chef letting TV viewers in on the finer points of producing Irish soda bread.

Jim Neil's TV title "fireman chef" comes from his current position as a fireman with the San Francisco fire department — "Engine 41," as his TV show title points out.

Jim Neil, co-owner of the Village Cookery in Orinda, will star in "The Fireman Chef from Engine 41" on Channel 5's "Evening" show, starting Aug. 12 at 7:30 p.m.

Closeout on swim classes

PLEASANTON — It's the last chance to get wet this summer, according to the city's recreation department.

A new session of adult swim lessons is slated from Aug. 15 to Sept. 3. An evening class is offered on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 7:15 to 8 p.m. Morning classes are scheduled Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 to 9:45.

All skill levels will be handled. Teens, too, are welcome.

The last sessions of lifesaving will begin soon.

Basic rescue classes began this week, and advanced lifesaving instruction will begin Aug. 22.

Basic rescuers must be at least 11-years-old and able to swim 250 yards.

Advanced lifesavers includes 15-year-olds who can swim 500 continuous yards.

The water safety instructor's course to be offered in the spring requires a current advanced lifesaving card, and those students who wish to be employes at various aquatic facilities "must realize that advanced lifesaving is the minimum certification for employment," according to director Dolores Bengston.

Lifesaving classes are held from 2:30 to 4:40 p.m., Monday through Friday, for two weeks.

The last session for stroke class began this week.

Handicapped swim classes continue at 1 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Anyone not able to participate in the regular program regardless of their handicap may join these classes.

"At this time" no scuba diving class is scheduled, according to Bengston. But if enough interest is shown, a new class will be started.

Those interested should call the aquatic center, 846 - 1720 between 1:30 and 7 p.m. daily.

The new fall schedules and complete summer brochures are available at the Aquatic Center on Black Avenue.

All registration must be done at the center during posted hours

More exemption qualifiers

The homeowner's exemption for those who pay property tax will be granted to 3.89 million California households this year.

William M. Bennett, Chairman, State Board of Equalization, announced today that this figure represents a growth during the past year of 130,900 homeowners qualifying for this exemption, and coincides closely with the number of new single-family dwellings built during that period.

Bennett said that since 1973 the law has provided for the exemption for $1,750 of assessed value or $7,000 of full cash value for each qualifying homeowner. The exempt assessed value totals $6.78 billion, which is 6.6 per cent of all locally assessed property in the state.

Bennett pointed out that local governments sustain no tax loss from this exemption because they are reimbursed in full by the state. This year the state will pay approximately $800 million, compared to slightly more than $760 million last year. The exemption is worth $200 to the average homeowner, approximately the same value as last year.

The homeowner's exemption has been fixed at a maximum of $1,750 of assessed value for five years. During that period, the total exemption statewide has increased by 18 per cent, from $5.7 billion to $6.8 billion. At the same time, the gross assessed value of all locally assessed property has soared almost 60 per cent, from $64.5 billion to $102.8 billion. Almost 40 per cent of locally assessed parcels are single-family residences.

As inflation has escalated property values, the relative value of the homeowner's exemption has been eroded. Currently, the Legislature is considering various measures proposing property tax relief for homeowners.

During the past year, the number of homeowner's exemptions and the amount of assessed value increased by approximately ten per cent or more in ten counties: Lake, Maderax Mariposa, Mendocino, Merced, Nevada, Placer, Stanislaus, and Tulare.

Teen trip to Half Moon Bay

PLEASANTON — Teens can trek to Half Moon Bay this month courtesy of the city's recreation department.

The tour leaves from the West Wind Youth Center at 9 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 14, and returns to homes at 7 p.m. The fee is $1.

All participants are asked to bring suits, towels and a lunch.

For further information call 846 - 2240 between 3 and 5 p.m., or 8 and 10 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Or call the Pleasanton Recreation Department at 846 - 3202, ext. 215 Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Welfare count

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The number of Californians on welfare dropped in June to 1.4 million in the largest category, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, state officials say.

The drop of 9,290 from May was attributed to more summer jobs available, the Department of Benefit Payments said Tuesday.

The state spent $2.7 million on the 1.4 million AFDC recipients, down 1.9 per cent from the month before, the department said.

In the single-parent family group, there was a drop of 2,682 persons.

Pleasanton chamber's factbook

PLEASANTON — Got your facts straight?

The chamber of commerce hopes so. It recently completed delivery of the hot-off-the-presses community information booklet, "The Pleasanton Factbook."

Boy Scouts of Troop 901 hand-carried the books to every home in the city, according to chamber executive manager Chad Henderson.

Since the books are hand-carried and left at each home, an occasional one will go astray.

Those who missed their copy of the factbook should call at the chamber office, 10 Neal St., for their copy.

Sirens squeal on Friday

Emergency sirens will sound at noon this Friday in Alameda County's quarterly test of its disaster warning system.

The sirens will blow steadily in a one minute blast followed by one minute of silence and concluded with a one minute wavering signal.

The tests are run in conjunction with participating cities and are conducted to insure the operation of the warning devices in the event of a major disaster.

The equipment is constantly maintained, inspected and is tested daily except Sunday with a 20-second blast.

During an actual emergency, the sirens would sound for three to five minutes.

A steady blast would mean a peacetime emergency, while a wavering or short intermittent siren would warn of an immediate attack.

If the sirens sound for three to five minutes at times other than the quarterly or noon tests, you should listen to local radio or television stations for official information concerning the emergency, according to the county's Office of Emergency Services, which is conducting the test.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I was a big marijuana user until I got cut off for reasons I don't want to go into. I have more money since I stopped, but less good sex. I decided I could turn on just as well with alcohol but alcohol isn't the aphrodisiac that grass is and I miss that. When I left drugs behind me, I made a very clean break. I don't see any of the same people and my whole life style has changed, mostly for the better. Is there any special drink that would give me the sexy glow I used to get from drugs ? — B.N.

DEAR B.N.: I hate to disillusion you, but I doubt that marijuana is the aphrodisiac you think it is.

I suspect the special sexual stimulation you experienced resulted more from the expectation and the general atmosphere than from the drug itself. You might try repeating the lighting, music, incense and everything else that went with your earlier successes (everything except the drug) and see what happens. Don't forget the most important aspect of any aphrodisiac is the feeling you have for the person you're with. Love is still the big turn on, even though this may sound dull and old - fashioned.

Alcohol is certainly not an aphrodisiac. Actually it is a depressant and while a little may relax and remove some inhibitions, too much alcohol will make a man impotent.

Judging from replies to questionnaires mailed out to university students, more women (60 per cent) reported an increase in desire after smoking marijuana. On actual sexual enjoyment, however, the figures changed and became just the opposite. With both sexes, as the amount of marijuana smoked increased, both the desire and the enjoyment of sex decreased.

It would appear that a small amount of alcohol or marijauna releases tensions, guilts and inhibitions about sex, but there are many other, healthier ways to get these same results. Talking with your partner and sharing anxieties can help.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: One of my boys lied to me in order to protect his brother. My wife and I have taught our children never to lie to us. As a punishment I banned my son's favorite TV show for a month. My wife and I got into a quarrel over this because she felt his lie was justifiable. I tried to point out to both her and my son that you can't make separate rules for each occasion. Am I being unreasonable? — W.M.

DEAR W.M.: I believe rules must be flexible to be just. I also feel that there are almost no rules that apply to every situation. For instance, I don't think that truth is always best. There are times when it can be destructive and needlessly cruel.

Encourage your son to talk about this particular lie. There are times when sensitivity, maturity and loyalty are more important than truth.

Of course, on the other hand, a child trying to protect another from punishment can put that child in much greater danger by not telling the truth.

We all tell some lies every day of our lives. No matter how much we like to believe that honesty is the best policy, most of us tell "white" lies, change the subject, or in some way manipulate conversation in order to protect ourselves or others.

Sometimes parents who are too rigid or too severe in their punishment may unconsciously lead their children into deceitful behavior. If your son was trying to protect his brother from your punishment then it might be good to ask yourself whether your methods of discipline are perhaps too inflexible and harsh.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am curious as to the amount of calories used in different jobs, in resting and activities. I am a bookkeeper and have a weight problem. If I could find the approximate number of calories used per day then I could gauge my calorie intake according to this and maybe begin to lose weight.

DEAR READER — The moment of truth as to whether you are eating too much and not exercising enough is when you feel that layer of fat under your skin. If it is shrinking you are going in the right direction. If it is increasing, better reconsider your program.

There are a lot of variables that determine the number of calories anyone uses. It even depends on how much of your body weight is fat and how much is muscle. The person with more fat and less muscle will use fewer calories at rest than another person who weighs the same amount but has more muscles. That is why body composition — not just pounds on the scales — is so important.

A healthy, well-conditioned person who is not fat will use about 1500 calories a day at absolute rest — as if he were asleep. We call this basal metabolism and it represents about 60 to 65 calories an hour. These calories are used to keep your body in its healthy state. That includes the energy required to move nutrients into and out of cells and all sorts of chemical actions that must be accomplished just to maintain that wonderful machine of yours.

Sitting awake will take about 100 calories an hour. Standing about 110 calories an hour. As an office worker you will be interested to know that while doing office work a 150-pound healthy person would use about 150 calories an hour — about the same number used to do ordinary housework.

Walking uses about 60 calories a mile more than you would use while sleeping. Our 150-pound example, then, would use 120 calories to walk two miles plus the basal 60 calories for the hour for a total of 180 calories an hour while walking two miles. If he walks three miles in an hour his body will use a total of 240 calories.

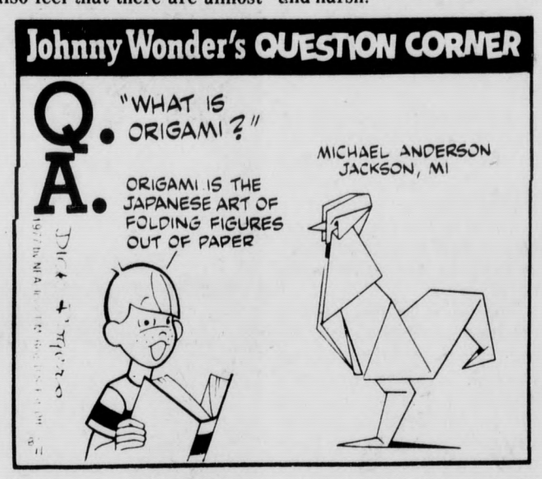
Bicycling at 5.5 miles per hour uses only around 200 calories. At a rapid rate, though, cycling may use over 400 calories an hour.

Calisthenics vary greatly depending on how vigorously they are done and your body weight. If you are only moving 100 pounds around the floor it takes a lot less energy than if you are moving 250 pounds. If the exercise consists only of swinging the arms it won't use as many calories as running in place or doing pushups.

Swimming is good exercise and doing a crawl stroke at one mile per hour will use over 400 calories.

Since your body fat stores are eventually the net result of how many calories you take in and how many calories you use, you need to pay attention to both diet and exercise.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



Have you ever folded pieces of paper to make them look like a hat or a boat? And, perhaps, you have folded a piece of paper to make a glider or airplane.

If you have, what you probably didn't realize is that you were practicing a kind of paper sculpture called origami (pronounced or-i-GAH-mee).

Origami, or paper folding, is the art of folding objects out of paper without cutting or pasting. It has been practiced in Japan for several hundred years.

Using origami, you can learn to make birds, fish, flowers, animals and even people dressed in interesting costumes.

Origami figures can be made with any thin, crisp paper that takes a sharp crease.

Origami figures can be so constructed that they seem to move. With a few quick folds, for instance, origami experts can make a frog that hops when its back is tapped.

In Japan, a paper crane or tortoise fastened to a gift means "good luck."

Opening lead — 5 ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

A and B who used to defend hands in the auction bridge columns before East and West took over the job were back at the weekly duplicate.

As usual they found themselves on defense. A opened the five of spades in accordance with what he had learned from Work, Foster and Lenz. That fourth-best lead is still standard.

South's queen picked up East's 10. South led the eight of clubs and let it ride.

Before you go any further you can look at all the cards and see that South is going to lose two clubs and four spades and make his one notrump on the nose.

Not against B. He executed a real swindle as taught him by Sidney Lenz some 50 years ago. He won the club with his ace and led back the 10 of diamonds, not a spade.

Now put yourself in South's place. South was sure he could collect four club tricks. It also looked as if West had led fourth best of a six-card suit. So South hopped with the ace of diamonds, led a club, finessed and lost to the queen. Then B cashed his king of diamonds and led his spade to give A four spade tricks.

Taking it easy for a change

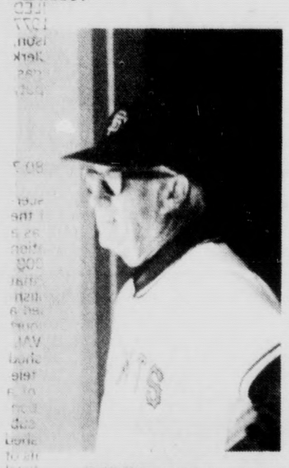
On Sports

Aaahhh, the good life. It's hitting Bill Rigney with the same taste of a tender New York Steak — better with every bite.

"I'm having a great time," reflected the former San Francisco Giant manager, enjoying the leisurely retirement life around his Alamo home. "I've been playing a little golf, doing some fishing and enjoying a year of leisure. I'm trying to find water someplace, like everyone else."

"Yeah, I'm keeping plenty busy."

Rigney, the man who guided the fortunes of the Giants in 1958 when the club took "The City" by storm, is also steering clear of Giants' owner Bob Lurie.



Bill Rigney

The pair haven't talked since spring training, the time Rigney was supposedly under Lurie's wings as a special consultant for the club.

But talk broke off at the bargaining table.

"I thought I was going to do something for the Giants," said Rig, who managed the Giants for five and a half seasons (the first two in New York) before taking over as the first skipper of the Los Angeles (later California) Angels for eight plus American League seasons.

"I don't think they were sure what I was going to do, so I made the decision to leave. I think they wanted me to be a consultant without pay. It was a very uncomfortable situation and didn't look like it was going to be much fun. I just decided it would be better if I stepped away from it."

So, Rigney, who lost his managerial duties to Joe Atabelli this year, hasn't attended a single Giants' encounter all season and has dropped by Oakland for Finley's Follies just four times.

"I've seen the Giants play on TV of course," he said. "I follow them and feel they are where they ought to be. A year ago I thought they were not quite a .500 club and I still think that way."

No longer does the grey - haired baseball wizard sit cross - legged in the dugout, showing a fiery expression matched only by Yankee boss Billy Martin.

For 18 years as a manager, Rigney pointed his finger at umpires, the bullpin and often the Giants. And he's still doing the latter.

"The Giants seem to have some players but they don't seem to defend the game well enough," noted Rigney, enjoying the critic's role.

"The pitching staff doesn't have a solid No.1. They need one over there. They don't have a Gaylord Perry. They don't have a Tom Seaver. They don't have a Don Sutton. They need someone the rest can follow. They really don't have anyone who will ever be outstanding. I think John Montefusco has a good arm but I don't think he's a No.1 pitcher.

"Last year the team showed a lot of enthusiasm because the team remained in San Francisco. But looking back at the club, it needed a lot of help. And it still needs help. How long do people want to keep watching the "young Giants?" The team has always been young."

Baseball people, especially Rigney, knew Oakland's cannonball start this year was a credit to new found enthusiasm combined with a bunch of no - names playing over their heads. But, like A's diehards, Rigney got caught up in the early season mania.

"I'm sure that everyone who knows the game was aware that these were just a bunch of babies up here in the big leagues," he said of the A's new kids on the block. "They started good but weren't deep enough and it was everyone's guess that the league would catch up with them. And it has."

You don't have to be a baseball man as long as Rigney to agree with his latest conclusion.

"It's going to be a long season for both teams," he understated. "The Dodgers have just about lapped the field now. If you finish second, you're going to finish 15 games out of first place. The gap is so big it's going to be tough to keep the fan interest."

It'll be a struggle to keep Rigney away from the diamond in some capacity. He's made it publically known to several clubs that baseball is his first love and wants a new start.

"I don't know if I miss managing, but I certainly enjoy the game," he assured. "When the job with the Giants didn't materialize it was too late to do anything with any other organization.

"I thought I would put in a league summary and see what came around next year. Instead of pulling the pin completely, I think I can contribute something to the game because I still like it."

For 38 of Rigney's 59 years, the professional game has been a way of life. Making the jump to the majors with New York in 1946 after a three year stint in the service, Rigney served as an indielder with the Giants until 1953 and was a member of the miracle club in 1951 that won the famous playoff game over Brooklyn on Bobby Thompson's home run "shot heard around the world."

A steady player, Bill contributed 17 round trippers to the Giants' famed 221 Club in 1947 that set an all - time National League homerun record by a club in one season until Cincinnati tied the mark in 1956.

Known as the "Cricket" for his slender build, the infielder was actually the first Giant to use the basket catch. Sorry Willie.

His unorthodox style of corraling fly balls was a familiar sight to Polo Ground crowds.

He's done it all, save managing a World - Series team.

"I played in one in 1951, but the only thing that kind of eluded me was the World Series. We won the pennant with the Twins in 71, then Baltimore beat us in the play - offs. Then with the Giants we had an awful close shot in 1959. The Dodgers just nosed us out that year."

But aside from that, the legendary great wouldn't change one thing.

"I've enjoyed all the people I've met, watching the players develop ... There were more highs than lows, believe me."

Recovered Finn stops rival

David Finn showed that he is completely recovered from a arm injury with a convicing 6-0, 6-2 victory over long-time rival Bob Cannon in the finals of the Pleasanton Racquet Club Jr. Tournament boys' 18 competition yesterday at Amador Valley High School.

The San Jose State-bound Amador Valley graduate was out four months with the injury before resuming practice in June.

In other championship action yesterday Mark Wheeler defeated Norm Yakemori, 6-0, 6-0 for the boys' 16 crown, David Reynoldson won the boys' 14 title with a tight 7-6, 7-5 decision over Mike Mitchell, Brian Warman topped Todd Trimble, 6-4, 6-4 for the boys' 12 championship, Marilyn Morrell captured the girls' 16 title with a 6-1, 7-5 defeat of Kathy Carey and Joan Belzer won the girls' 12-and-under round-robin crown.

"I used the top-spin and ground-stroke well for the first," time," said Finn about his victory. "That helped a lot."

Finn, who has competed against Cannon 20 times and won 19 of them, won the East Bay Athletic League title two years ago but was upset by Tripp Gordon of Monte Vista last season.

David is going to San Jose on an academic scholarship but has high hopes of making the Spartans' tennis team.

"San Jose finished sixth in the nation two years ago," he commented. "I'm hoping to make the top 15 of their squad this coming year. That would qualify me for their junior varsity team as a freshman and I think I would get a lot of competition."

Morrell had little trouble in her first set against Carey but had to rally from a 5-2 defecit to take the second set and the match.

"I started to hit from the backhand well and that helped my game," she said after the contest was over.

Marilyn was the EBAL champion as a sophomore at Amador Valley High last year. She defeated Carey in the first round of the league playoffs. Carey is a student at Foothill High.

Belzer defeated Sherry Eaton 6-4 in the final set for the girls' 12-and-under round robin crown. Ranata Scholl finished third, Cathy Eaton fourth and Vickie Siason was fifth in the competition.

In consolation action Phil Newkirk captured the boys' 18 title with a decisive 6-1, 6-1 decision over David Liske.

Keith Olson won the 16-year-old crown by topping Bill Zagatta, 6-2, 6-3. Olson was eliminated from the winners' brackct Monday by losing to eventual champion Wheeler.

Other consolation action saw Jim Nash beat Scott Mayo, 6-0, 6-2 for the boys' 12 championship, Jim Buranis defeat Jeff Finn, 6-4, 7-5 for the 14 title and Jenny Anger winning the girls' 16 crown with a 6-1, 6-1 decision over Carolyn Kramer.

Record WTT crowd sees Bjorn lose, sulk

OAKLAND — There was one person on the courts here at the Coliseum Tuesday night that didn't appreciate the record attendence of 11,277.

That boisterous crowd watched the Golden Gaters slice down the Cleveland Nets, 30-26 in World Team Tennis action.

The unhappy man was Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg, who lost men's singles to an elated Tom Okker, 7-6.

Borg was so upset that he left the arena immediately after his defeat. He suggested that if anyone wanted an explanation, they could ask Nets' player-coach Marty Reissen.

Reissen was willing to act as spokesman for the vanished Borg.

"You have to put it in perspective. On the road trip, he's lost six out of six games. He's tired. He's just not playing well," Reissen said in defense of his star player.

"If you know you're the best, it's hard. He knows he's a better player than most. It's also difficult to play in front of a crowd like that. He feels that his talents weren't appreciated. They never cheered for him," Reissen noted.

The crowd was the noisiest of the year, but all of their support went for the home team.

Reissen speculated that the game could have been over easily at the start, going in Borg's favor, as he was leading 4-1. But he said that Okker began to pressure Borg midway through the fifth set.

"It didn't seem that Okker was doing anything differently though," Reissen said.

Gaters' player-coach Frew McMillian disagreed with Reissen.

"Tom's serves were much better. The win might not give Tom a feeling of authority, but in any other matches he has this year he'll certainly have more confidence," McMillian predicted.

"This win was far more significant than his one over Nastase," he said.

Okker also took the opposite view from Reissen about his brilliant showing.

"My serve was the big thing. I also tried to come to the net more than the last time I faced him. A lucky volley, good serves, and deep slices paid off for me," Okker explained.

He said that he changed his game and just waited for the chances he needed.

Prior to Tuesday's game, Okker had lost three times to Borg by the same score of 6-2.

McMillian and Okker claimed another victory for the Gaters by knocking out Reissen and Borg in men's doubles, 6-3. They are now the league leaders in that category. Reissen and Borg were number one before the game.

NOTES: Tonight's is the final regular season home match for the Gaters ... It will be Fan Appreciation Night with prizes, including a trip for two to Hawaii, to be given away at halftime ... The Gaters have beaten the Cascades in three of the teams' four meetings before last night's game in the Northwest ... Seaport's lone win came May 7 in Oakland, 29-25 ... Erik Van Dillen, the Cascades doubles specialist, is out for the season with an injury ... Former Gater Betty Stove, a Wimbledon semi-finalist, will again be in the line-up for Seaport.

Ex-Miami players get year in jail

MIAMI — A judge Wednesday sentenced two former Miami Dolphin players to a year in jail for selling cocaine, but left them some hope of returning to pro football once they are free.

Randy Crowder and Don Reese, who admitted selling a pound of cocaine to an undercover policeman, pleaded no contest and Circuit Judge Joseph Durant with held adjudication as part of a plea-bargaining agreement.

The five felony charges carried maximum 25-year sentences. Instead, Durant gave the two defensive tackles a year in the Dade County Stockade and five years probation.

"If you get in trouble, you are going to the penitentiary," Durant warned Reese and Crowder. "If you do anything wrong, you will be letting me down. I won't forget it."

Durant withheld adjudication under a state law allowing judges to impose jail sentences as a condition of probation on uncontested charges.

The Dolphins suspended the two defensive tackles after their May 4 arrest, and later waived any claim to them. No team has picked them up, but National Football League officials have said it might be possible for them to play again if they weren't convicted.

The judge's decision to withhold adjudication means that Crowder and Reese will have no felony convictions on their records.

Dolphins' owner Joe Robbie said later that pleading no contest "is the equivalent of pleading guilty. I am disappointed that Reese and Crowder still give no explanation of their conduct.

"They deserved no special treatment than anyone else would receive under the same circumstances. The least that should be required of them is to help bring everyone to justice who had any part in the events leading to their arrest."

Defense attorneys contended that sending Reese and Crowder to prison might eventually lead them to crime by closing forever the gates to pro football, the only work either man knows.

"These men have suffered the greatest punishment they could in this case — banishment from pro football," defense attorney Barry Garber told the judge.

Neither player spoke during the hearing. The sentence had been worked out ahead of time with the judge, but Durant gave the prosecutor and a Miami detective a chance to object to the agreement.

An undercover policeman paid Reese and Crowder $20,000 for the cocaine after being introduced to the players by an informer, a woman named Camille Richardson.

Police said the cocaine weighed slightly more than one pound and was of such highquality it could have brought $230,000 if diluted and sold in retail quantities. — by Associated Press

Yanks bomb Blue, 6-3

NEW YORK — The New York Yankees handed Oakland pitching ace Vida Blue the earliest knockout of his career in a five-run first inning Wednesday night and breezed to a 6-3 victory that extended the A's losing streak to 12 games.

Cliff Johnson's two-run bloop double made the score 4-0 and saddled Blue, 10-14, with the initial first-inning kayo of his career. Reggie Jackson singled home the first run and Lou Piniella doubled across the second as the Yankees also took advantage of three walks.

New York starter Ron Guidry, 9-6, allowed four hits and struck out eight in seven innings before Dick Tidrow finished up. The A's nicked him for a run in the sixth and added two more in the ninth.

Blue, unusually wild, faced just seven batters and retired only the lead-off man, getting Willie Randolph on a line drive to first on a 3-2 pitch.

The hard-throwing left-hander then walked Nettles and Thurman Munson both on 3-2 pitches, and Jackson, after fouling off a trio of 3-2 deliveries, rapped another one for a run-scoring single.

Piniella doubled home the second run and, after a fullcount walk to Chris Chambliss loaded the bases, Johnson lofted an opposite field pop fly double down the right-field line. Paul Blair then greeted reliever Doug Bair with a sacrifice fly for the fifth run of the inning.

Bair and Mike Norris then held the Yankees hitless following a one-out single by Blair in the third inning.

The A's had scored only 18 runs for Blue in his 13 previous setbacks, but this time he didn't stick around long enough to give them much of a chance.

Manny Sanguillen singled with one out in the second inning for Oakland and Guidry retired the next nine batters until Jerry Tabb singled with one down in the fifth. Tabb went to second on Tim Hosely's tap to the mound but was stranded when Larry Murray looked at a third strike.

PGA on TV

PEBBLE BEACH — Weekend telecasts of the 59th PGA championship will be shown in Northern California, the tournament's Executive Committee announced Wednesday.

It had previously been announced that there would be a television blackout of the event involving stations in San Francisco, San Jose, Stockton, Sacramento, Fresno and Santa Barbara.

"Advance ticket sales have greatly improved in the past few weeks and while our 80 per cent goal has not been reached, we now feel confident that the gate sales during the week will bring our attendance within our projected goal," said Joseph Fratessa, general chairman of the tournament.

AV fan club on the move

The Amador Valley High School boosters club has a lot of activity scheduled for the upcoming school year.

Prior to the Dons first football game Sept. 16 vs. Tracy, the boosters will throw a spaghetti dinner — open to the public — which will include the Bulldog players.

For the next game, on Sept. 24, the boosters will rent a bus and travel to Modesto to view the J.V. and varsity games and dine at the Sun Dial Lodge after. Reservations are available by writing to "Bus Trip" in care of the school.

On Nov. 12, following the football season, several Oakland Raider players will join the boosters for a wine-tasting party.

Membership in the booster's club is $5 with tickets for Don sporting events priced as follows, football season $8, wrestling included, basketball/wrestling $12.50, football, basketball and wrestling $17.50.

Those tickets are available from Mrs. Dick Clark, 1166 Vintner Way in Pleasanton. Eight dollars extra will fetch the bus trip as the home game season tickets. Booster jackets are sold at Dublin Sporting Goods.

Merchants second

Sandy Szczerbin and Lynette White led the Dublin Merchants to a second place finish in the Placerville Invitational Women's slow-pitch softball tournament over the weekend.

Szczerbin hit the most home runs in the tourney with four, batted .618 and had 18 rbi. White followed with two home runs, 11 rbi and a .500 average.

The Merchants won five of their seven games during the weekend, losing only to the eventual champions.

The first game was a 19-9 win over Sunshine Co. Pat McKee contributed four rbi and went 3-for-4 at the plate along with making several outstanding defensive plays. McKee later hit a home run in the final game. Cindy Wilcock was 2-for-3 in the first affair.

That afternoon, the Merchants downed the San Jose Peppers, 14-13, thanks to Diane Parkinson, who was 3-for-5 and struck out a Pepper while pitching. White homered in both the fourth and fifth innings while Kim Landau, who tripled, was 2-for-3, while playing first base.

Dublin opened Sunday's activity with a 7-2 win over the Sugar Babies as Szczerbin homered twice. After losing their second game of the day, the Merchants buried Mohammed Construction, 8-1.

Sandy Hewes played well at third base and went 3-for-3. Jody Minshall was 2-for-3 after homering in the loss to the Bobcats.

Peg Baker, the left fielder, was 2-for-4.

The Merchants will host a 16-team, double-elimination tournament at the Pleasanton Sports Park and Elementary School Aug. 20-21.

Killion takes blind bogey

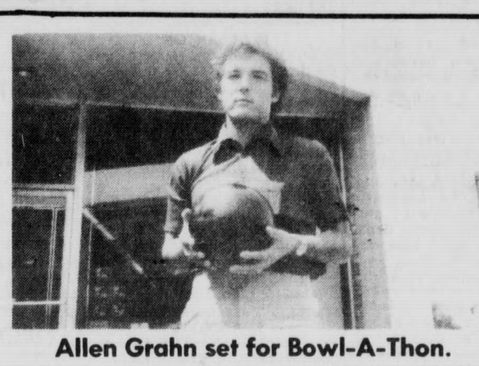
Walt Killion and Blind Bogey golf are doing just fine together.

Killion, a Livermore resident and constant participant in the Granada Bowl Golf Tournament, took top honors in the ninth renewal of the tourney at San Ramon National Golf Course over the weekend with a net score of 52.

Killion compiled an a handicap of 60 strokes over the course of the 18 holes and the 60 strokes turned his 112 gross round into the winning score.

Danny Brown, also of Livermore, took second with a blind bogey score of 60. Castlewood member Arnie Fields won the golf contest with a gross of 75 while Frank Byington won the hacker's award with a 141.

Sony Mayer's blast on the 15th hole earned him long drive honors while Ken Centers won the closest to the hole contest over Tome Crane and Dennis Fanucchi. Five-hundred and sixty-four dollars were collected for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.



Allen Grahn set for Bowl-A-Thon.

Two pros ready to bowl all night long

Larry MacCaughey and Allen Grahn will be the two professional bowlers from the P.C.C.B. on hand at the Granada Bowl in Livermore for the Muscular Dystrophy Association Bowl-A-Thon.

The Bowl-A-Thon will get underway at 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 20 and run until the same time the following day.

Grahn is 34 years old, married, and has been bowling for 20 years. He has rolled a 300 game, an 800 series and carries a 209 average. A P.C.C.B. champion, Grahn has many scratch victories to his credit including the Broadway and Castle Bowl 20-game endurance tourneys.

MacCaughrey, 32, has been bowling for 16 years and carries a tournament average of 214. He has bowled a startling 24 perfect games and has racked up four 800 series.

Pledges are currently being taken from one-half cent per strike by the two pros up to five cents per strike. The bowl-a-thon is co-sponsored by the Livermore Jaycees and the Granada Bowl with this year's fund-raising goal set at $5000.

Inside China today

A Californian who had the answers

By DEAN S. LESHER
Publisher

The state of the economy within the People's Republic of China is dramatically told by the fact that the largest unit of money China has is a ten juan bill. At 1.87 juan to a dollar, China's largest money note represents only $5.35 in U.S. money.

China has ten juan ($5.35 U.S.), five juan ($2.67 U.S.), two juan ($1.07 U.S.) and one juan (94 cents U.S.) paper bills. The juan divides into 10 jiao, which in turn divides into 10 fen.

There are five, two and one jiao paper bills and five, two and one fen coins.

When you arrive in China, you have to declare all foreign currencies you are carrying, including travelers checks and letters of credit. When you leave China, you account for the difference between what you took in and what you are taking out.

Your declaration form for entry should show a record of all conversions of currency made in China. Unspent Chinese money may be converted at the exit border.

Chinese money is not to be taken out of China.

Chinese money is designed to serve the Chinese and not travelers. When you cash U.S. travelers checks for $500, you get 935 juan. This comes in the form of 93 ten juan bills and one five juan bill. This is quite a bundle to carry around.

In China, the average yearly earnings per worker in the agricultural communes is about 300 juan or about $160 U.S. for the year. Their vegetable gardens, chickens and a pig supplement this income for the family.

In the factories and handicraft works, wages vary greatly — ranging from 40 to 100 juan a month. The average is about 60 juan a month or about $32 U.S.

Under these circumstances, the Chinese living on Mainland China do not need, and could not use, a larger unit of currency than a ten juan note.

When I think of the Chinese economy and the nation's economic picture, I immediately recall a very pleasant surprise that took place in the store in our hotel in Hangchow.

I was browsing around when a young man asked where I was from. When I said California, he said that he was also from California. When I asked him what part, he said "central California." When I asked him what city, he said "Merced."

It was in March, 1941, that we bought the Daily Merced Sun-Star as our first paper in California. We still own that paper and I'm still its publisher. It is a good small-city, county seat newspaper.

When I mentioned my name the young man recognized me as publisher of the Sun-Star. He said that the Sun-Star had printed several of his articles when he first lived on Taiwan years ago.

His name is Steve Harner and he is attached to the U.S. Liaison Office in Peking. He is one of 30 Americans in that office establishing relations with the People's Republic of China prior to full diplomatic relations. Steve is a graduate in economics, and this is his assignment.

Steve Harner's parents have been friends of mine for years. His father is an excellent physician, and his mother has been very active in civic, community, and political affairs. They now live in Mariposa where his father is in semi-retirement. His mother has been the Republican nominee for Congress from that district several times.

We had a delightful chat during which I met his Chinese wife and their baby daughter. I invited his wife and daughter to have dinner with our group that evening and breakfast with us the next morning.

All of our group wanted to get from Steve answers to questions gathering in our minds after two weeks in China.

Steve told us how difficult it was to get accurate figures on China's economic status. The production of China's factories is not given in total quantities. The figures issued merely show an increase over and above what these same factories did "before liberation."

Since liberation was Oct. 1, 1949 and since China had been torn for over 20 years by a Japanese invasion and by its own civil war, these comparative figures reveal little about the gross national product.

Steve told us that the United States pooled its information with the British, the Canadians, the Germans, the Japanese and others in order to arrive at what all of them feel is a fairly accurate statement of how well China is doing.

He confirmed our impressions that the Chinese are letting self-reliance lead them into traps by preventing them from taking advantage of the latest technical knowledge in the world.

He confirmed that the oil fields are having problems created by the failure of the Chinese to learn the newest oil techniques and the newest engineering methods.

The Chinese need to improve their agricultural production. At present, because of lack of automated equipment to plant and harvest, because the tillable soil is limited and because rainfall in northeast China is not reliable, the Chinese have difficulty in providing enough food for the 930 to 950 million Chinese who live on mainland China.

The Chinese have had to import grain, primarily wheat, almost every year to make up for the deficits in its own harvests.

The Chinese are trying to mount an offensive to develop light industry. This is the next move after they have conquered their agricultural needs.

After light industry, they plan to move into heavy industry. These goals have been set for many years, and the Chinese are far behind in achieving the goals.

Years ago Chairman Mao said that China would be equal with the United States by the year 2000 in the production of material goods. Each year that has passed has seen the gap between industrial production in America and industrial production in China widen more and more.

China today is much further behind the United States in both agricultural and industrial production than it was in 1949 when the Communist Party took control of China.

As the years pass and the Chinese leadership gets further away from the influence and teachings of Chairman Mao, the trend should be for the Chinese to be less self-reliant and to actively enlist the services of engineers and scientists to help them develop the tremendous resources which China unquestionably has.

When this takes place, China will move into the 20th century or 21st century with a bang and will become within several decades a leading industrial nation of the world.

Steve Harner cautioned us to keep in mind the huge size of China and the great distances involved in going from one area to another.

This vastness makes the solution of transportation problems much more difficult than for any other nation in the world except for Russia and its vast Siberian land mass. Distances in Europe are very tiny and even distances in other Asian countries are much less.

The Chinese have had so little over the centuries and have been so badly exploited by every kind of rule that they apparently do not now expect much. This could change radically when they learn how much better most of the world lives. Control of the masses may be much more difficult then. And this is perhaps China's biggest problem — after solution of food production and development of its resources.

China's problems have been developing for centuries and they cannot be solved in a few years, Steve warned.

To move from somewhat primitive conditions to what the capitalist people enjoy will take many years. It will take almost as many to achieve even the standards that some other nations in Asia enjoy today.

It is obvious that the U.S. wants full diplomatic relations with China, even though this involves the knotty Taiwan problem. President Carter seems determined to achieve this in 1978.

Until we gain this status, the U.S. will not be able to trade with China. Now, China looks elsewhere for what it needs, and the U.S. is the last resort for whatever it needs.

Trade with China in the next 50 years is a prize the world will strive for because of many reasons. China pays cash for what it orders.

China's needs are so great that trade with it will run into billions of dollars each year for perhaps a century.

For years, the United States has had a deficit of foreign trade. This means that we buy more abroad than we sell abroad.

This outflow of hard cash from the U.S. is a considerable factor in our economy and in inflation. If we can reverse this by trade with China, we will be helping ourselves in many ways.

We will be employing more people to produce what we sell to China. We will stop the adverse flow of money abroad. We will help to hold down inflation.

So, the pressure for full diplomatic relations with China is only beginning. It will build up as people in our country realize how much our country could benefit from the trade we all hope will follow such recognition and full diplomatic relations.

St. Raymond restoring to be underway soon

DUBLIN — Restoration of Old St. Raymond's Church on Donlon Way in Dublin will get underway again as soon as scaffolding and other materials arrive, according to the Amador Livermore Valley Historical Society (ALVHS) who owns the church.

The ALVHS also owns the land on which the church is located. Building and site were purchased for preservation and restoration purposes in 1966 from the Oakland Catholic Dioceses, an ALVHS spokesman said. A deed restriction stated that no religious ceremonies may be held on the premises, he added.

Restoration was delayed due to a Bicentennial Year effort. From July 1975 to June 1977, ALVHS rented the church to the Dublin Historical Preservation Association (DHPA) to use as office space for DHPA Bicentennial Year projects. The rental fee was $1 per year until the last few months when it was raised to $50, Ollie Silva explained. She is on the ALVHS board of directors.

DHPA is instrumental in preserving and restoring the area surrounding Old St. Raymond's Church. Their project is called The Heritage Center. Their new office is at the Heritage Center in the Old Murray School building.

Now the ALVHS Old St. Raymond's Restoration Committee is set to begin again. Although they do not receive any government funding, they have enough money in the bank to complete most of the restoration, Silva reported. Their monies were raised through donations, art fairs, barbecues and other such fund raising events. Volunteer labor has also been available, she added.

"Donations and help for restoration and maintenance will always be welcome," said an ALVHS spokesman.

Silva suggested anyone interested in learning more about the restoration project or in donating time should attend a ALVHS meeting Aug. 25, 8 p.m. in Old St. Raymond's Church.

Part of the plans for restoration include repainting the interior, putting in original and donated pews and artifacts plus installing an oil painting behind the altar. This painting is broken down into a set of panels. It was a gift from St. Augustine's Church in Pleasanton, Silva said.

Plans are being made to replace a ceiling decoration.

"That ceiling art was put on with the aid of a stencil," Silva explained. "Oldtimers say there were angels and saints in the sunburst style ceiling decoration. We have tried to locate the original stencils but believe they have been lost."

Edna Dobbel and Evelyn Moller of Pleasanton are artists who will supervise the art work restoration.

In past years, the ALVHS Old St. Raymond's Restoration Committee has put in electricity, heating equipment, a new foundation, new roof and replaced some windows. Since the old steeple had partially rotted, a lot of restoration was needed on it, Silva said.

The ALVHS maintains a museum at the Alameda County Fairgrounds, according to Paul Moffatt, Chairperson of Old St. Raymond's Restoration Committee.
